184th Intelligence Wing, Kansas Air National Guard

As Kansas Air National Guardsmen our mission is three-fold: to protect our nation, assist our state and serve our community. We do all that while maintaining one of the most diverse Wings in the Air National Guard.

In July 2008, the Wing was formally recognized as the 184th Intelligence Wing, making it the first Intelligence Wing in the Air National Guard. With the loss of the unit's flying mission, the "Flying Jayhawks" became the "Fighting Jayhawks". However, Intelligence is just a portion of what we do. We have a diverse mission set which includes the largest Munitions Storage Area in the ANG, the busiest and largest Weapons Range in the ANG, as well as having the ANG's only Network Operations Security Center within our Wing.

As we say, "Many Missions... One Team. The Fighting Jayhawks."

184th Intelligence Group (IG)

The 184 IG specializes in the exploitation of combat sensors. Teams of analysts fuse multiple sources of data to provide war fighters timely, tailored situational updates on the battlefield, in urban warfare, and in unpredictable environments.

The IG is expanding from the current MQ-1 "Predator" ops into the complex realm of U-2 and RQ-4 "Global Hawk" Intelligence, Surveillance and Reconnaissance (ISR) operations. It provides for both the physical and electronic distribution of Intelligence, Surveillance and Reconnaissance data and products. Most importantly, the 184 IG enables American and coalition forces to get the information needed to take action and influence events in hours, minutes, or even seconds.

134th Air Control Sq (ACS)

The 134 ACS is tasked to provide a world-wide deployable battle space management platform providing tactical level support of air operations planning and execution. The squadron operates the Modular Control Equipment (MCE) Radar and Link-16 Data link Gateway to provide surveillance and airspace control. Their wide range of communication skills and capabilities are critical to net centric warfare, as well as to the Kansas Air National Guard's Defense Support to Civilian Authorities (DSCA) mission.

177th Information Aggressor Sq (IAS)

The 177 IAS integrates advanced tactics, training, technologies and tools to provide full-spectrum threat assessments to participating Department of Defense units.

This squadron, attached to the 57th Aggressor Wing at Nellis AFB, Nevada, identifies physical and network vulnerabilities and provides solutions through vulnerability assessment visits and red team operations.

284th Air Support Operations Sq (ASOS)

The primary ASOS mission is to provide direct support, utilizing air resources, for Army ground maneuver units. It also provides combat-ready Tactical Air Control Party (TACP) assets for combat maneuver units. The TACP briefs Army commanders on the capabilities and employment of air power, ensures it's synchronization into the ground commanders' battle plan, and provide terminal attack control for close air support (CAS) missions.

299th Network Operations Security Sq ( NOSS )

The NOSS's high-tech operations provide real-time network security to over 106,000 Air National Guard users at 300 locations. NOSS manages network defense, generates an enterprise situational awareness picture and manages network configuration. It also provides information assurance for all ANG networks, and serves as the network help desk for application and system issues throughout the entire ANG enterprise.

Smoky Hill Weapons Range

Smoky Hill is the largest and busiest ANG bombing range in the nation. The range encompasses 51 square miles of training space with over 100 tactical targets and an electronic warfare range. Located 10 miles west of Salina

KS, Smoky Hill provides realistic combat training for military aircraft and ground forces from all the military services. In addition, it provides unmanned aerial vehicle support for selected users.

184th Munitions Sq (MUNS)

The MUNS rapidly provides war fighting commanders with aircraft munitions and weapons release equipment to meet worldwide contingencies and conflicts. It's tasked to receive, inspect, maintain, and deploy Standard Air Munitions Packages, Standard Tanks, Racks, Adapters, and Pylons Packages (STAMP/STRAPP).

184 IW Quick Facts

1. First Intelligence Wing in the Air National Guard
2. One of the largest employers in the Wichita area
3. Average local economic impact exceeded $105m

127th Command and Control Sq (CACS)

The CACS functions as a component of DoD's command communication and coordination network. It serves as the backbone for global command and control.

184th Intelligence Wing Support Services

Our Wing has a myriad of specialized missions complemented by a dedicated team of Headquarters and Mission Support Group personnel. Manpower, Civil Engineering, Supply, Security Forces, Finance, Services and the Command Support Section form the foundation that supports our Wing's unique blend of missions.

Defense Support to Civilian Authority (DSCA)

Guardsmen respond to natural disasters in 19 nearby counties providing communications, security, medical, civil engineer, chaplain, and chemical/biological expertise. A variety of equipment is available to include generators, lights, heaters, trucks, and communication equipment.

Kansas STARBASE

Kansas Guardsmen and DoD instructors teach math and science to 4th, 5th and 6th grade students during regularly occurring two week STARBASE academy classes.

Community Impact:

- 7,600+ Kansas students have graduated
- 81 schools within six counties have participated
- 27% improvement in Pre & Post Flight Tests
- 75% gain in positive attitude toward math and science
